He stated that a number of republican voters of the district who are in the Army and Navy and will, therefore, be unable to vote this year, greatly outnumbers the democrats who are in the service, and he gave this as one reason for his hopefulness. He also declared that he believed the President's appeal for a democratic Congress would influence some republicans in his favor. He reminded his hearers, however, that he could not win unless the democrats go to the polls, and urged the
